locational process: a process run to help a person locate things and himself in the environment. —Academy Level IV Glossary

Locational Process: a Scientology process which is done by walking around with a person, both indoors and out of doors, telling him “Look at that (indicated object),” using objects such as a chair, a tree, a car, the floor, the ceiling, a house, etc. The person running the locational would point at the object each time. It is simply run until the person is brighter and has a win. —Clearing Congress No. 5—Clearing Procedure Approved Glossary

Locational Processing: a type of Scientology auditing in which the auditor has the preclear notice objects and people in the environment. The object of Locational Processing is to establish an adequacy of communication terminals in the environment of the preclear. It can be run in busy thoroughfares, graveyards, confused traffic or anywhere there is or is not motion of objects and people. —Conquest of Chaos Approved Glossary (8.7.92)

Locational Processing: processing which consists of having the person look at various things in the immediate environment. The auditor points out and has the person look at many different objects (including the injured body part, if the person has a specific injury) so as to diminish the person's pain and improve his condition. —TRs and Objs Crs Glossary Final approval 25.4.90

location (of the thetan): the thetan is an energy unit which is located in the center of the skull. It is conceived to be small but is as large as the preclear believes it to be. A thetan who cannot leave the current body very often believes himself to be holding on only to the current body, and yet in actuality is holding on to a facsimile of an earlier body. The thetan also believes himself to be the size of some earlier body. A thetan from the Fifth Invader Force believes himself to be a very strange insect-like creature with unthinkably horrible hands. He believes himself to be occupying such a body, but is in actuality simply a unit capable of producing space, time, energy and matter. —LRH, 8-8008 - Scientology 8-8008 Glossary Final approval c. 3 Mar 1990

Loch Ness: a lake in northwestern Scotland well known for being the home of the “Loch Ness Monster”, a supposed prehistoric monster, described as 30 feet long with two humps, a snake-like head at the end of a long neck and two flippers about the middle of the body, first sighted in April 1933. —SHSBC Binder 4 Approved Glossary

Lock Scanning: a process which starts the preclear from a point in the past with which he has made solid contact up through all similar incidents without verbalization. This is done over and over, each time trying to start at an earlier incident of the same kind, until the preclear extroverts on the subject of the chain. Boil-off often results wherein the preclear seems to go to sleep. Avoid boil-off for it is not therapeutic and will eventually result in reduced tone. Boil-off is a lazy auditor's excuse to be idle and facsimiles in such severe conflict that they will not resolve without resolving postulates first. Lock scanning is a standardized drill, starting on signal and ended with the preclear saying he is again in present time. It can be done on any subject. Above 2.0 (on the Tone Scale) only. —APA Glossary (app 11.7.90)

New Year's resolutions: the plans traditionally made by individuals on the first day of the year, New Year's, which is celebrated as a holiday in almost every country. The earliest of the ancient nations celebrated this day. In ancient Rome, the first day of the year was given over to honoring Janus, the god of gates and doors, of beginnings and endings. The month of January was named after this god. Janus had two faces and looked both ahead and backward. On the first day of the year the Roman people looked back to what had happened during the past year and thought of what the coming year might bring. The early English took over many of the Roman New Year customs. Later the English followed the custom of cleaning chimneys on New Year's Day which was supposed to bring good luck to the household the coming year. That tradition has changed through time. Instead of cleaning the chimney, resolutions are made to correct faults and bad habits, resolving to make the new year better than the one just ended. —SHSBC Binder 15 Approved Glossary

- Nile, battle of the: a battle fought by English naval admiral, Horatio Nelson, in the late 1700s while England was at war with France. The French military leader, Napoleon Bonaparte (1769 - 1821) had been victorious on land and began to gather his fleet together for a naval battle with England. Nelson was sent to watch the French ships at Toulon, a seaport in southeastern France. A storm came up and under its cover the French fleet escaped. Nelson followed it in a long pursuit and finally cornered the French fleet in the Bay of Abukir in northern Egypt, where he attacked and almost destroyed it on 1 August 1798. This engagement cut off Napoleon's army in Egypt and ruined his Egyptian campaign. He was forced to desert his army in Egypt and had to sneak across the Mediterranean in a tiny ship. This victory made Nelson world-famous. He was made Baron of the Nile and given a large sum of money. See also Nelson in this glossary. —PDC Volume 1 Approved Glossary

- Noah: (Bible) a righteous man in the Old Testament whom God chose to spare from the flood that covered the face of the Earth. The account is that the wickedness of people made God regret that he had created them and made him resolve to send a flood that would destroy all the living creatures in the world. God decided to spare Noah and his family, who had lived virtuously, and to allow them to repopulate the Earth. God commanded Noah to build an ark (a large, rudderless ship), and to take his wife, three sons, and three daughters-in-law into it, along with a pair of each of the Earth's animals. When Noah had done so, God sent forty days and forty nights of rain, until the entire globe was flooded, and all living creatures were drowned. When the rain ended, Noah released a dove from the ark. When it returned with an olive branch in its beak, Noah knew that the waters had receded and that he and his family could begin a new life. —PDC Volume 3 Approved Glossary

- overt doth speak loudly in accusation, the: an allusion to a statement in the play, Hamlet, by William Shakespeare. In this tragedy, Hamlet falls into melancholia after the death of his father, the king. The king's brother, Claudius, assumes the throne and marries Hamlet's mother, Gertrude, within two months of the king's death. His father's ghost appears to Hamlet, accusing Claudius of murdering him and demanding revenge. Unable to bring himself to action and beset by doubts as to the truth of the ghost's words, Hamlet persuades some traveling players to re-enact the death of his father. The play includes a scene in which the actress depicting the queen vehemently protests the idea of remarrying after the king's death. During this scene, Hamlet asks his mother how she likes the play. The queen's reply: «The lady doth protest too much, methinks.» See also Shakespeare in this glossary. —SHSBC Binder 30 Approved Glossary

pan, flash in the: a brief, intense effort that produces negligible results. This term comes from the seventeenth century, when the pan of a musket was where one put the powder that was ignited by the sparks from the flint. If it ignited properly, the sparks would set off the charge in the gun, and this charge would propel the ball (and later, the bullet) out of the barrel. Occasionally, the priming powder in the pan would burn without igniting the main charge, and the gun would misfire. The burn was visible but to no effect, just as a flash in the pan is successful but shines only for a brief time. —3rd South African unpublished Appr GLS (19.3.92)

A turnpike is a road on which a toll must be paid, especially one that is an expressway. The term comes from a vertical pole (or pike) set up across the highway lanes to admit traffic. As each vehicle pays the toll the pole raises or turns so as to let the traffic pass through. Turnpikes originated in England in the seventeenth century where a small toll was imposed on travelers and goods for the purpose of keeping parts of the roads in good repair. —SHSBC Binder 13 Approved Glossary

Perry: reference to the Perry brothers, Matthew Calbraith (1794 - 1858) and Oliver Hazard (1785 - 1819). Matthew was an American naval officer and diplomat who joined the navy in 1809, saw action in the War of 1812 and later served as an officer in the Mediterranean. His chief claim to fame rests on his negotiations with the isolated country of Japan in 1852 - 1854. He successfully arranged a treaty which opened Japan to the US and the rest of the world. Oliver, his brother, as an American naval officer had been ordered to build a fleet on Lake Erie in the north central US in order to prevent British advance during the War of 1812. On 10 September 1813, the Battle of Lake Erie was fought in which Perry heroically forced the full surrender of the British fleet. Pizarro: Francisco Pizarro (1474 - 1541), a Spanish conquistador of the sixteenth century, who set out on an expedition to colonize Peru for Spain. In 1531, he and his two partners landed in Peru with about 180 men, some cannons and horses. The Incas (rulers of a vast empire in South America) had a civilization wealthy in gold, silver and other natural resources, though no draft animals. They were, however, already divided by a civil war when Pizarro arrived and so he easily defeated the army of Atahualpa, the Inca ruler. Pizarro took Atahualpa as prisoner and demanded a huge ransom for him. The Incas began filling a room with gold to get their leader back. But instead of freeing him, Pizarro had Atahualpa strangled and took Peru. —PDC Volume 6 Approved Glossary

- prayer wheel: a mechanical means for the recitation of mantras (syllables or verses with mystical efficacy) used by Tibetan Buddhists. The prayer wheel consists of a hollow, metal cylinder, often beautifully embossed, that is mounted on a rod. The mantra is written on a roll of paper and inserted in the cylinder after having been properly consecrated by a lama (priest). Each turning of the wheel by hand is equivalent to the prayer's oral recitation. The rationale is that the mantra when properly executed has a metaphysical power of its own. Its correct recitation, however, is difficult to learn and for the ordinary Tibetan the turning of the written word is a substitute that must be done much more frequently to make up for its lesser power. —SHSBC Binder 30 Approved Glossary

- psychoanalysis: a system of mental therapy developed in 1894 by Sigmund Freud (1856 - 1939), Austrian physician and neurologist. It depended upon the following practices for its effects: The patient was made to talk about and recall his childhood for years while the practitioner brought about a transfer of the patient's personality to his own and searched for hidden sexual incidents believed by Freud to be the only cause of aberration. The practitioner read sexual significances into all statements and evaluated them for the patient along sexual lines. Each of these points later proved to be based upon false premises and incomplete research, accounting for their

Rabelais: François Rabelais (1494? - 1553), French humorist and satirist. The word «Rabelaisian» has been applied to the type of broad and coarse humor which fills his works. His greatest work, Gargantua and Pantagruel, relates the adventures of Gargantua, a giant with an enormous appetite and his son Pantagruel, the «king of drunkards.» The book is a sort of burlesque of politics, education and the church as they existed in his time. Rabelais was in his own way a philosopher who disagreed with the hidebound customs of his day. His books expressed his ideals of free and joyous living and ridiculed the strict principles of living taught by the church. —PDC Volume 7 Approved Glossary

Reich, Wilhelm: (1897 - 1957) Austrian psychiatrist and social critic. Even before his graduation from the University of Vienna he began practice as a psychoanalyst and became influential in this movement. His practice expanded from Austria into Germany where, as a member of the Communist Party, he attempted to integrate his work as a sex counselor into the broader revolutionary movement. Reich's activities were suspect by the leaders of the Communist Party and, at the time of Hitler's assumption to power in Germany in 1933, he was forced to flee to Denmark. Later that year he was ousted from the Communist Party as a result of a work he published against official communistic doctrine. After attacks by other psychiatrists and the press he left Denmark for Sweden and a short while later went on to Norway. In 1937 his detractors reached him in Norway and he moved to the US and practiced there for many years. In the last years of his life, Reich showed little interest in psychiatry, devoting

- his efforts to discoveries in the field of physics. In 1956 he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for disobeying a government injunction which the Food and Drug Administration had obtained against him, ordering destruction of all orgone boxes, his journals and books. He died while in prison a year later. See also orazone, psychiatrist and psychoanalyst in this glossary. —SHSBC Binder 25 Approved Glossary
